The Mexican Challenge

The legend of the Tortilla Brothers

Los Hermanos mas curiosos

On February 23rd in the year 1836 Colonel William Barrit Travis and his 182 men faced the over-whelming force of several thousand Mexicans, led by the Mexican army chief Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna. The fierce battle was later recorded in history as the Battle of Alamo.

The Tortilla Family

At the same time three boys in Wantedville, Texas made an unusual discovery.

The Tortilla Brothers, also known as José, Paco and Pedro, lived with their mother Mama Tortilla at “La Hacienda de Las Tortillas” just outside the town of Wantedville.

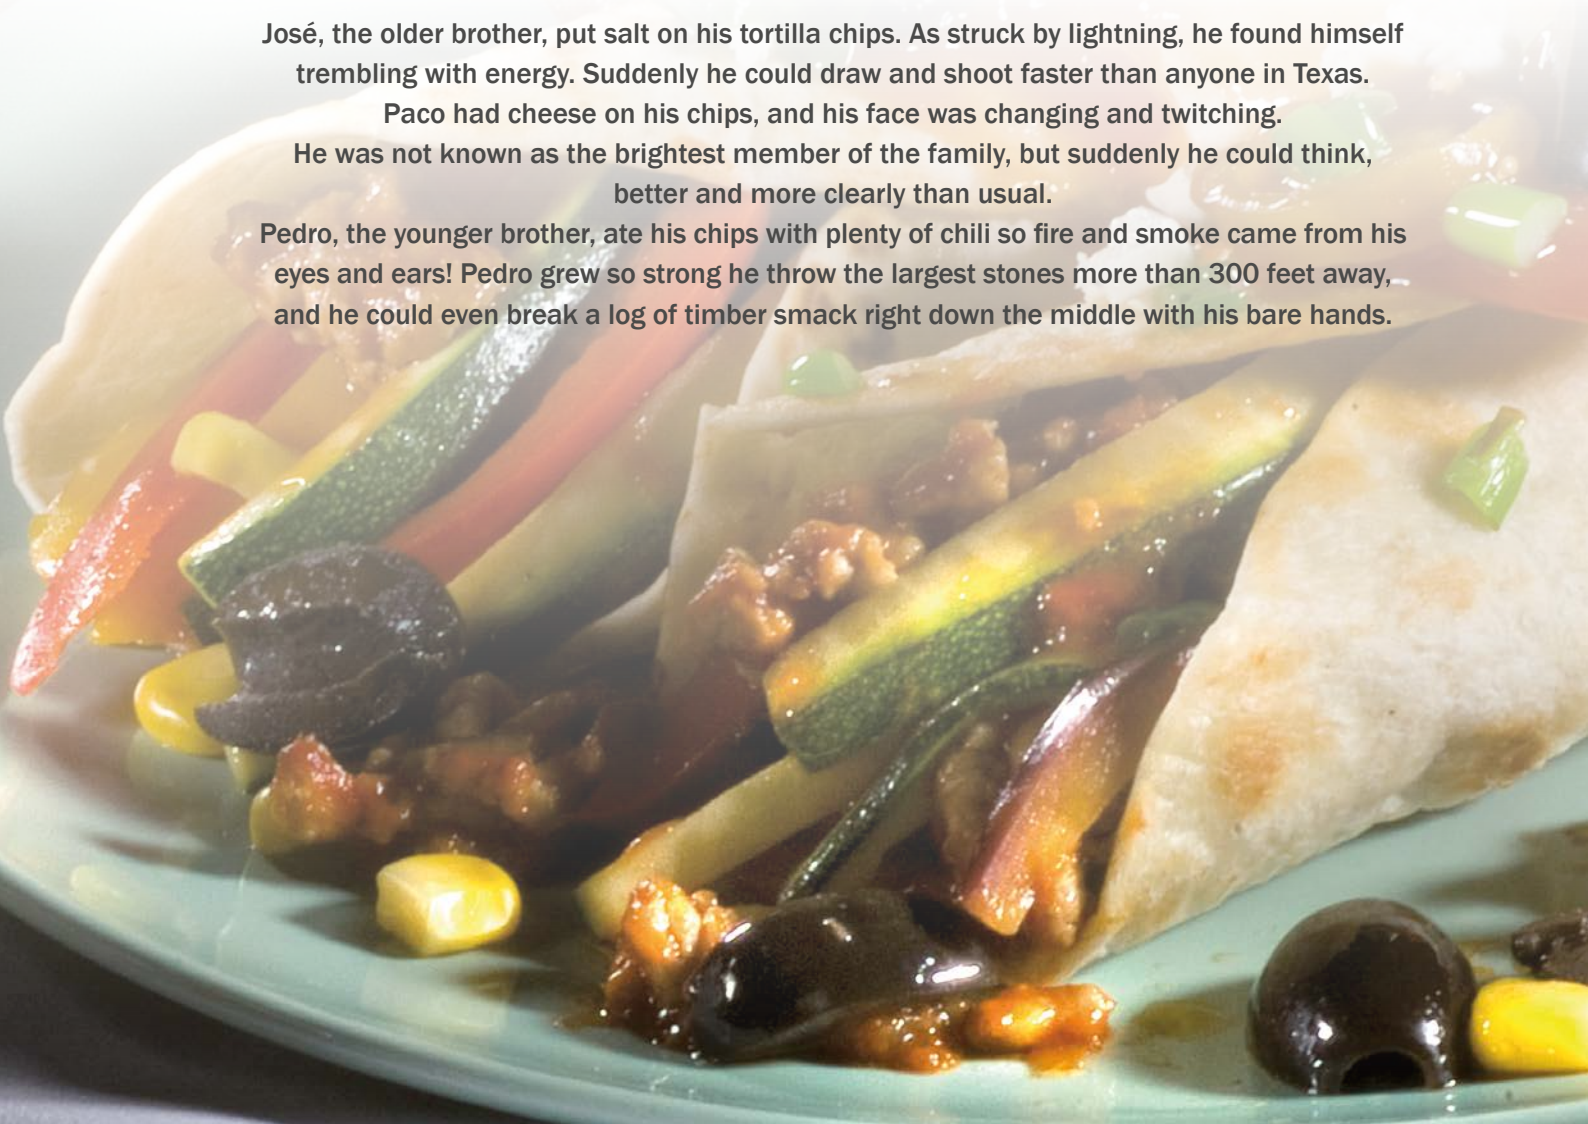

One fine day, as Mama was working in her cornfields the boys saw an opportunity to grab some of Mama’s corn tortillas. They cut the tortillas, and fried the pieces in a little oil, and thus, according to the legend, were the first to make tortilla chips.

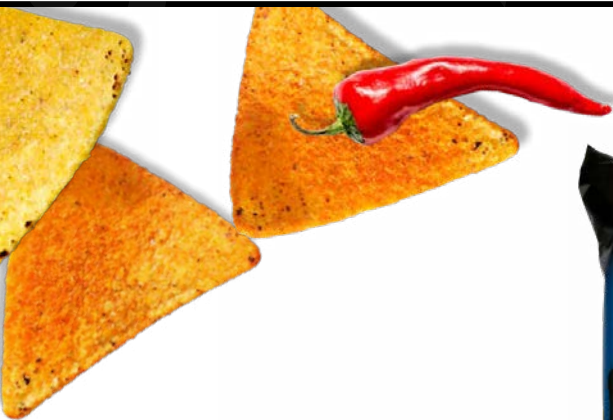

José, the older brother, put salt on his tortilla chips. As struck by lightning, he found himself trembling with energy. Suddenly he could draw and shoot faster than anyone in Texas.

Paco had cheese on his chips, and his face was changing and twitching.

He was not known as the brightest member of the family, but suddenly he could think, better and more clearly than usual.

Pedro, the younger brother, ate his chips with plenty of chili so fire and smoke came from his eyes and ears! Pedro grew so strong he throw the largest stones more than 300 feet away, and he could even break a log of timber smack right down the middle with his bare hands.
